Mina de oro operativa en exploración

Kirguistán tiene muchas de las minas de oro más grandes de Asia Central.

Ubicado en las laderas del norte de Kirghiz Range, en los tramos superiores, componentes derechos de la corriente Karabulak, en la parte central de los campos de mineral Bulakashinsky.

Las rocas volcánicas participan en la estructura geológica del sitio. rocas representadas por andesitas y andesita-basaltos, sus tobas y clastolavas. Las rocas intrusivas están representadas por gabro-shonkinitas, sienita-dioritas y granodioritas, que son fases separadas de un solo complejo intrusivo. Un rasgo característico de las formaciones de este complejo es su aparición en forma de lámina. De suave pendiente con ángulos de buzamiento de 10° a 50°, en las rocas volcánico-sedimentarias que lo encierran.

Con estas estructuras y asociadas a la formación de zonas mineralizadas y yacimientos del yacimiento.

La mineralización de oro y cobre identificada, así como las zonas de beresitización y silicificación en el sitio de Severny, están confinadas directamente a las intrusiones de granodiorita o, más a menudo, a sus contactos intrusivos con rocas intrusivas y volcánicas anfitrionas.

La beresitización del ancho de la zona alcanza aquí las primeras decenas de metros. longitud trazada a 400 m. Entre las beresitas, la silicificación de vetas más intensa, con diseminación diseminada de sulfuros de cobre, plomo, hierro, molibdeno.

Puntos clave

El depósito de oro es en realidad un campo grande que consta de varios depósitos de oro y 1 depósito de cobre. El vendedor afirma tener un alto grado de oro (porcentaje de contenido de oro por 1 tonelada). Sin embargo, el campo no está bien desarrollado. Todos los datos son recopilados por ingenieros soviéticos y parece que no se ha hecho nada desde ese período.

Las reservas calificadas como P1 y P2, según los estándares canadienses o australianos, son iguales a los resultados de exploración, los objetivos de exploración, el potencial de exploración o incluso algunas pueden ser inferidas. Estos son los niveles más bajos de exploración.
